

HUGE DISPLAY OF FIREWORKS TO MARK 4TH

Kittenball Tourney Is Also Planned by The C. of C.

Plans for the greatest Fourth of July celebration ever staged in Muscatine or surrounding vicinity are under way with the chamber of commerce busily engaged to put the event over in the most gala and entertaining fashion.

A chamber of commerce committee, composed of George W. Zoller, chairman, Joe Roth, Ray Dunker, and E. C. Rosemund to make plans for the Fourth, with the aid of several local business men has planned a program, which they believe should draw one of the biggest crowds ever to assemble in Muscatine.

Plan Kittenball Tourney

A main feature will be the first kittenball tournament event to be held in this vicinity. The committee expects teams from all towns within a radius of 40 miles to compete.

Cash awards of approximately $50 are to be awarded to the best team. The chamber of commerce asks teams desiring to enter to communicate with them at once.

Muscatine will be represented by a picked team from the kittenball players of approximately 150. The method of picking the team will be announced in Friday's Midwest Free Press.

Weed park has been granted in full to the committee, an ideal site.

Boat Club Co-Operate

The Muscatine Power Boat club is co-operating with the committee and is planning many river events.

Harry Timm is in charge of a speed boat exhibition. Bob Leu has been named to find some crack surf board riders and make arrangements with race boat drivers to pull them. Surf-boarding on the Mississippi has grown to be a popular sport in Muscatine.

Henry Welch was named chairman of the venetian parade committee while the fireworks display will close the day.

Lions Club Holds Annual Picnic on Cedar River Today

Approximately 100 members of the Muscatine Lions club attended the annual outing of the organization at the Wagner cottage on Cedar river this afternoon. The program and picnic was arranged by the losing team of the attendance contest, of which George Koenigsacker was captain. His team attained an average of 93 per cent in attendance and the winning team an average of slightly more than 95 per cent.

Volley and kittenball games together with other athletic contests were the entertainment at the picnic. A fish fry is scheduled for this evening.

Bids Opened Today For Minor Work at Local Post Office

Bids for changing the revolving doors and remodeling the stamp and general delivery windows of the post office were opened this afternoon by W. S. McKee, postmaster. The bids will be forwarded to the treasury department at Washington, D. C., for final approval and the successful bidder will receive notification from there.

The regulations require that three employees of the government be present when the bids are opened. Those present today were Frank Richards, Frank Wyman, and Charles Fifer.

Ten bids were received. They are as follows: Wesley Zeidler, Muscatine, $2,392; William Grohn, Joliet, Ill., $3,535; C. D. King, Charlottesville, Va., $2,419; E. H. Case, Norwood, O., $1,695; Smythe & Co., Washington, Ia., $1,913; Henry Grohn, Decatur, Ill., $1,678; Homer V. Schroder, Wausau, O., $1,892; Universal Construction Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind., $2,222; T. J. Maher, Muscatine, $2,014; Charles A. Zeidler, Muscatine, $2,081.

The bids call for the replacing of revolving doors now being used at the post office by two sets of swinging doors, at each entrance, and changing the position and arrangement of the stamp and general delivery windows in the lobby.

Supervisors Will Hold Full Session Here on Thursday

The Muscatine county board of supervisors spent Tuesday afternoon allowing claims and checking warrants and adjourned to meet again Thursday morning. At that time more claims will be allowed and a conference held with a delegation from the Muscatine city council on the matter of making the office of city assessor an all year one.

The demonstration in the morning will be conducted at the home of H. M. Main in Wilton township, and the afternoon demonstration will be at the Muscatine county farm on Houser street.

Mr. Layton will demonstrate the use of sodium chlorate as a means of eradicating noxious weeds.

England Will Not Call Conference to Discuss War Debts

LONDON—(INS)—The British government has no intention of calling a conference of the powers with a view to discussing a general cancellation of war debts, Premier Ramsay MacDonald informed the house of commons today.

"Such action, under the present circumstances, would serve no useful purpose," the Premier stated. MacDonald's statement was made in answer to a question by a member of the house of commons whether the government would consider calling such a conference for discussing cancellation of "the largest possible scale."

"The attitude of this country regarding war debts is well known," the Premier answered, "action along the lines suggested would, under the present circumstances, serve no useful purpose."

POTOSI DAY IS HUGE SUCCESS

Between 500 and 700 Attend Big Dance At the Airport

Have you had your Potosi yet? If you haven't it's your own fault because Potosi day was celebrated here Tuesday, ending up with a big dance that lasted until the wee hours this morning. Between 500 and 700 lovers of good near beer had their Potosi at the Airport pavilion while dancing to the strains of stirring ragtime music as played by "Doc" Wenak and his German jazz band, the world endurance champions and the only band of its kind in the United States.

Potosi day was sponsored here by Bob Heberer, local distributor of the brew that made Potosi, Wis., famous, and was a big success from every standpoint.

Starting at 9 o'clock in the morning when Wenak and his band met a caravan of Ford motor cars at the end of Mulberry avenue and led them to the Ford motor show opposite the Hotel Muscatine, "Doc" and his boys in a huge Potosi truck, owned by Heberer, visited practically every Potosi dealer in the city and delivered numbers appropriate to "Potosi Day."

After a concert in front of the Mid-West Free Press at 3 p. m. Tuesday the following places were visited: The Muscatine drug store, Pepper Shoppe, Fuhlman's grocery, Opel's cafe, A. J. Schultz grocery, Melton's grocery, Potosi Distributing company, Lincoln cafe, People's cafe, Harry Monds, confectionery, Kozz Inn, Wollett's Place, Whitmer's sandwich shop, Montgomery's ocean fish house, Wagner's cigar store, Elchenauer's cigar store, Freese Inn and Airport.

The condition of John Wiley, West Liberty, former sheriff of Muscatine county, is reported as considerably improving. "Doc" Wenak, undivided one-fourth interest in lot 4 block 5, town of Cranston.

J. E. Remig and George N. Wells of the S. G. & P. Stein Furniture company, who are now attending the Furniture Mart in Chicago, are expected to return Thursday.

Supervisors Fred Kaufman, George Sauer, J. Henry Schafer, A. J. Alekruze and W. J. Barclay, and County Engineer F. P. G. Halffass are expected to return home tonight from Fairfield where they attended a conference of county officials.

Frank Golden, arrested Tuesday afternoon by federal, state and county officers during a raid at the Colonial Buffet, 113 Sycamore street, waived preliminary hearing this morning on a charge of maintaining a liquor nuisance and was bound over to the grand jury under bonds of $500 in Judge H. D. Horst's court.

The name of Marilyn Lamb, pupil at the Garfield school, was inadvertently omitted from the list of students entitled to perfect attendance pins for being neither absent nor tardy, it was announced today by Charles Kern, attendance officer.

F. Angell today was issued a permit by the city engineer's office for the erection of a stucco sandwich stand on Cedar street between Front and Second streets. The estimated cost is $2,500.

W. J. Hoopes, lessee of the filling station at 917 West Front street, this morning reported to the police that someone had broken into the station and taken $4 in change from the money drawer during the night. An investigation by Chief Mack Taylor disclosed that entrance had been made by breaking the glass out of a rear window and crawling inside.

Initiation of candidates featured a meeting of John Harold Kemble post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Tuesday night at Memorial hall in the court house.

FILE DRAINAGE ACTION DECREE

Assess Costs of Suit Against Objectors In District One

A formal decree dismissing the suit of A. L. McIntire and others against the Muscatine county board of supervisors to prevent them from continuing with the work of repairing the ditch in drainage district No. 1 in Wapamonoc and Goshen townships, was entered in district court today by Judge A. P. Barker.

An opinion was filed last week by the court in which he ruled that the county board of supervisors had acted with full jurisdiction in ordering work done, the action of the court upheld the county's procedure in ordering the program of widening, deepening and cleaning out of the drainage ditch to proceed.

Costs of the action, amounting to $17.15, were assessed to the plaintiff.

Record Crowd Hears Baker Give Address At Woodhull, Ill.

WOODHULL, Ill.—(Special)—More than 600 people, the greatest crowd ever to throng the Lutheran church here, heard Norman Baker of Muscatine give an address Tuesday evening. There were not seats enough for all, and many had to stand up.

The audience included visitors from Galesburg and all the surrounding towns, many driving many miles.

Mr. Baker spoke from 9 to 10:15 o'clock on a variety of subjects. He was brought here by the Men's Brotherhood of the Lutheran church.

Following the address a social affair was held, refreshments being served. Mr. Baker and R. A. Bellows, business manager of the Baker hospital at Muscatine, mingled among the crowd, shaking hands with many friends of the hospital and listeners of Mr. Baker's radio station, K-TNT.

Mr. Baker will speak again at Garrison, Ia., next Tuesday at 8 p. m. The program will be held at City park and J. W. Lenker, president of the Farmers' Protective association, will be among other speakers. A large crowd is expected.

Cedar Rapids Man Instantly Killed in Bus-Auto Crash

CEDAR RAPIDS—(INS)—Philip Berger, 50, was killed five miles south of here today, and his son, Donald, suffered dangerous injuries. Berger's skull was crushed when a Cranford freight truck enroute to Iowa City crashed into the Berger sedan. Berger had just driven out of a line into highway No. 161 when the truck, driven by H. E. Van Fossen, of Cedar Rapids, struck their car. Van Fossen said the accident was unavoidable.

It's Really NOT an Expense at All

CONSIDERING the food it saves—the tips to the market—telephone calls—perhaps even doctors' and druggists' bills added to time lost from work or school, ICE is really not an expense at all. Year-round users average but $3.54 monthly for ICE. There's no other cost but the moderate price of an approved refrigerator. Every family can afford ICE Refrigeration.

It's so sensible to use ICE for refrigeration—thrifty is the vogue now—no one boasts of how much they spend, but rather of how much they can buy for so little.

It will surprise you—and pay you—to inspect the new ICE Refrigerators.

Radio Commission Finally Discloses Its Vote on K-TNT

The vote of the federal radio commission on its decision to refuse to renew the license of K-TNT finally was learned by Norman Baker Tuesday. The decision was unanimous.

Mr. Baker secured the information after telegraphing the commission today. The delay in revealing the vote indicated apparent reluctance on the part of the commission. The commission did not reveal the vote to the press association when announcing its decision nor did the official notice of the action received by Mr. Baker disclose the vote. The latter is considered unusual, since it is understood the commission always apprises the parties concerned of the stand of its members in actions.

CLUBHOUSE AT PARK GRANTED COUNCIL O. K. $30,000 Project to Re- ceive Revenue From 2.5 Miles

An outline by G. M. Titus and J. D. Dieckman of the Muscatine park board of plans for a new clubhouse at Weed park to replace the one destroyed by fire last summer and which will cost not to exceed $30,000, received approval of the city council by a vote of 4 to 3 at its special session Tuesday night.

The park board members made it plain that while the amount they contemplated spending was far more than originally planned, they desired no more than the assurance that the appropriation from the city revenues for park purposes would continue, and be no less than 2.5 miles. The park board now receives 3 mills.

Auditorium a Feature
The request for the council's approval brought about a warm discussion with approval of the plan. The auditorium of the opinion that the new clubhouse would be a valuable addition to the city's recreational facilities.

Plans for the new building are as yet indefinite, but tentatively they call for a structure that would embody a concrete reinforced auditorium with a seating capacity of 350, suitable for moving pictures and other gatherings, storage for motorized equipment and a bakery.

The type that is most favored would be modeled after the plan of George Washington's home at Mt. Vernon, Va., with the building located close by the old cannons on the hill overlooking the Mississippi river.

Want Exceptional One
Those who favored the board member's plan were in accord with the idea that Weed park, one of the most beautiful in the state, should have a type of structure that would prove lasting, since the one now planned could be erected at a cost not greatly in excess of the one that burned.

By receiving assurance that the revenue from anticipated city taxes would continue at not less than 2.5 mills, and with the assurance that funds would be forthcoming from other sources, the park board members stated that they would be able to proceed with the plans.

An architect's drawing of the proposed building has already been sketched.

Farmers Attention: A Few Points on T. B. Test

BY NORMAN BAKER

I am in receipt of a letter from a good friend, Mr. E. A. Albee, and I believe it is of interest to all farmers, consequently I reprint it below, as follows:

316 Pine Street
Muscatine, Iowa
June 6, 1931
Dear Sir:

"I enclose a clipping concerning Cedar County farmers that raise fine Shorthorn and Herford cattle, and their experiences with Tuberculin testing."

"I've been an Iowa farmer many years. Have had cattle tested, and some condemned. One sent to the tank and like Mr. L. C. Larson, in the clipping, I'll tell the world, all one has to do is to follow his cattle to slaughter and he'll find the government knows what it is doing."

"Hate, denunciation and abuse constitute no part of the proper functions of a newspaper or broadcasting station, and if persisted in, must eventually ruin their authoritative apparatus for it is written: 'He that taketh the sword shall perish by the sword.'"

"I write this note to criticize but as an old friend, a word to the wise is sufficient."

Subtle Influence at Work
I have every reason to believe that Mr. Albee is in good faith, that his letter expresses his views which I am glad to receive.

The subtle power of influence can well be seen in his letter, of how it has gradually worked upon Mr. Albee as he has with thousands of others. Mr. Albee's letter was accompanied by an article cut from some paper that mentioned a Mr. L. C. Larson and S. E. Smith, also Mr. L. S. Larson all of West Branch, Iowa, in which it stated that Mr. Larson has some cattle react, he followed them to the stock yards, saw them slaughtered, and "were enough" there were T. B. symptoms. That Mr. Larson will now tell the world that he is for the tuberculin test.

Mr. Albee, Messrs. Larson and Mr. Smith, what would you have said if you would have found the cattle in fine shape? That very thing has happened, and ONE BUT OTHER where cattle have been sent to slaughter and found in excellent shape, in fact such good shape that the packers didn't pack the meat but sold it out to the meat markets for GOOD BEEF, and possibly YOU may have bought some of it. Then again, it is known, so the farmers tell me, and they have the affidavits to look at, that looking cows were sent to the packers as reactors, and their end was the tanks for grease, but they too ended in the meat markets.

Ask Some Questions
This all reminds me of a Dr. Clark, out around the locality of these boys, perhaps of Fairfield, who lambasted me a few days ago because I was against the present form of tuberculin testing. I met a man at New London, Iowa, Sunday who said Dr. Clark was raised on a milk farm, so to thin, so sickly that really they had to help the cow to arise, and that he, personally, was ONE OF THE MEN WHO USED TO DO that very thing, to help in raising her, and still Dr. Clark is well enough today and healthy enough to travel around and lambast me. This man told me that since seeing the cow, the state men call T. B. that this cow that Clark was raised on surely had the worst case of T. B.

To you gentlemen let me say this, and if you can, please contradict it with facts—

1—What was the compulsory T. B. law passed for?
My answer—to eradicate T. B. germs from the milk of cows that was being sold to the public. To make this a T. B. free area.

2—Is it a fact that a cow which passes the tuberculin test as perfect, that the milk of that cow will be perfect or FREE from T. B. germs?

My answer—NO, positively no, and no versed veterinarian or medical doctor will deny that a cow may pass the tuberculin test satisfactorily, and STILL SHOW T. B. GERMS IN HER MILK. I have read very good medical authority upon that and anyone in doubt can take milk samples from a herd of good free cattle, that have been tested, and you will find T. B. milk.

DENVER—(INS)—Two men were killed and two others seriously wounded early today when the quartet attempted to hijack a large quantity of illicit liquor at a still near Watkins, 35 miles east of Denver.

Reaction Not Consistent
In conclusion, let me say, that a cow with T. B. this month may not have it next month. Can you fellows account for that? Her milk will show T. B. today and be free in a few weeks, and on that account, all good laboratories advise one to have the milk tested every month.

I would like to hear from others on this subject for these columns are pro and con—and any farmers having worthwhile affidavits about cows that reacted and which when followed to the slaughtering pen were found good, I would appreciate them for these columns. These things can be argued out in a friendly way, and I thank Mr. Albee for writing me, and feel sure he will take no offense to my style of answering his good letter.

Mislead by Propaganda

3—Assuming that is true and the medical know what they are talking about, then why are you in favor of a test that is NOT INFALLIBLE?

(My answer) Simply because you have been misled by farm magazines and newspapers you have read, which have refused to tell you the truth about milk tests. These papers which profess to be so friendly to the farmers are so friendly to one group, and that group is those that favor the tuberculin test. Have you ever read an authentic article on the virtues of the milk test and its reliability as being far better than any other known test?

4—If a mother with a new born babe was suspected of having T. B. would you inject a serum into her to test her, or would you have the milk examined?

My answer. You certainly if you followed the preachings of the Medicals, would have her milk examined for T. B. germs, for reasons that medicals agree that T. B. is not hereditary but comes from age partaking of mother's milk by the infant.

5—Do you believe the tuberculin test accurate or "JUST GOOD ENOUGH FOR GENERAL PURPOSES"? If you do believe it infallible, then ask your own veterinarian and he will tell you it is not. Then to find out just how good it is, write a reliable laboratory and they will tell you it is O. K. for GENERAL USE.

Same as Cornborer Sham
6—Do you believe it is sufficient protection to the public to let them know that a cow has T. B. germs in her milk or not?

My answer—You are wrong if you do, and any good laboratory will tell you about it except those laboratories connected with state universities because the state universities are linked with the state agricultural colleges, those colleges linked with each county agent, the agent with the county newspapers, the United States department of Agriculture, and as mother and child, with that chain of propaganda, it works exactly like the workings of a few who spent TEN MILLION dollars in the one state of OHIO to rid the state of the meat packers by having the state papers say that if they, Ohioans, did not watch out Ohio would be over-ridden with cornborers as Iowa was and where they used tractors, oil burners, trucks, stubble cutters and what not, all to no avail, leaving as many or more cornborers in Ohio today than they ever had.

The sham of the cornborer is becoming the sham of the T. B. testers, and I glory in those who have intelligence to see through this chain of propaganda of serum manufacturers and doctors who are commercializing on animals now as they are on human souls. After the T. B. testing, as all doctors, while you and I, the tax payers, are the goat.

Applause Addicts

The craving for applause begins in the cradle. Perhaps it might be better for the world if it got no further. Human nature is so constituted that it likes and will work for recognition.

But that is far different from the eager desire for praise that is evidenced everywhere—not discriminating praise, but mere applause.

Little Jack Horner, you remember, sat in a corner, eating a Christmas pie; he put in his thumb and pulled out a plum, and said "what a fine boy am I!"

The achievement of getting the plum from the pie is about the character of achievement that makes most people believe they have done something, which merits the world's plaudits and approval.

One of the worst pests at large is the "life of the party" lad, who is always making observations—usually borrowed—in order to gain the attention of those about him.

Many otherwise excellent actors have marred their performances by grinning appreciatively as they spoke the funny lines of the playwright—taking credit, of course, for words they would not possibly have thought of themselves.

Those who have done anything worth while are entitled to credit for it, but such people do not usually go around seeking credit.

No praise is worth having unless it is discriminating praise —praise given by those who understand the merit of a performance.

The "wise cracker" who is constantly using quips, which he could not have invented himself, is about the worst nuisance abroad at the present time.

If you begin to think that it is your due to be approved by all the world, try to do something that all the world will have reason to approve.

Don't go through life insisting upon the laudation of those around you, or feel morose because it is not given you.

If you have really got your mind on your work you will be too busy to hunt for approval.

If you are doing anything worth while you will value intelligent censure even more than intelligent praise.

Once you become an applause addict your real usefulness is over.

All your efforts will be expended in a hunt for approbation, and if it does not come you will soon feel sour and abused.

Remember that chimpanzees, and dogs, and many other of the lower animals are applause hounds, and are sullen if they are not patted on the head and noticed for their performances.

Become an applause addict and you will automatically place yourself on an intellectual level with them, and with less justification, for they do not know any better.

Russia

Little authentic information seems available on the actual progress of the so-called "five-year plan" in Russia. A careful perusal of the many books and magazines now flooding the country leaves one with the inescapable thought that the whole truth has not yet been made available in print.

Women in Business

Whenever "hard times" are with us and jobs are scarce, much is heard about the "woman in business." One of the first remedies suggested for unemployment is the elimination of married women from the business structure of the country. Detailed statistics are solemnly published showing that, if married women were refused employment, thousands of men could be placed in the positions vacated by them.

A generation ago, the woman in business was "news." Many of those who attained prominence in business or in a profession felt called upon to dress manishly. The accepted pictorialization by cartoonists, of a business woman was a hard faced individual, wearing a severe suit and a plain sailor hat. Usually she had large feet.

This generation has accepted women in business. It has had to do so. Women have shown themselves capable of assuming business and professional responsibility and delivering the goods.

There may have been a time when married women worked to secure little comforts and luxuries which their husband's income would not justify. If there ever was such a time, it is passed. Today the average married woman who works does so because it is an economic necessity.

Wages, whether earned by men or by women, play a large part in stabilizing the country. Certainly the standards of living in this country have not been lowered by the entrance of women, whether married or single, into lines of endeavor disassociated with the home.

While the elimination of married women from employment might offer additional jobs for men, it is quite likely that the income per family would not be substantially increased.

Whatever part the employment of married women may play in the creation of a condition of unemployment generally, it cannot be seriously suggested that it is vital.

Our Platform for the People Is:

1. Less taxation.
2. Fewer State Commissions.
3. Universal school books.
4. Lower freight rates.
5. Return of river transportation.
6. A cleanup of some state institutions.
7. More efficiency in public offices.

"MIXING THE INGREDIENTS"

What would the doctors do for a living if everyone was as careful of the quality and combination of the foods which they ate as the chemist who prepares the finest cosmetics and perfumes.

Yet, of the two, the knowledge of food proportions and combinations is vitally more important.

When the body is clean and healthy a drop of high grade perfume is sufficient to give just that haunting delicacy of individual attractiveness that is correct.

When the body is clean and soaked with the wastes and poisons from bad food, and good food with wrong combinations, the body odors and skin appearance will make themselves noticeable even when a person is highly ornamented with perfumes and cosmetics.

Proper eating will give one that consciousness of being free from all disagreeable and offending bodily nuisances and one will not have to half drown themselves in perfumes or paste themselves up with cosmetics to make themselves attractive and enduring.

Today conditions have reached the point where more and better trained doctors can be found who will give expert advice regarding proper eating.

Regardless of where one obtains his or her information each one will have to be his or her own chemist to regulate the intake of food in accordance with the habit and occupation, and other activities of the individual.

After one has a knowledge of the various foods one can arrange them for each meal according to activities of the day. This is the common-sense way of feeding the human engine.

When you know which group of food is stimulating, muscle builders, energy builders and so on, you can very easily eat a meal composed of those foods which the body requires.

For instance, when the body is tired it would be poor policy to give it heavy muscle food to digest before it had some energy to handle it. Therefore we would eat a meal composed of energy building foods such as lean meat without fat or grease, and not over cooked; or one or two cooked laxative vegetables as greens such as spinach, boiled onions, baked cucumbers; and a side dish of raw salad. No bread, no rice, no cooking, etc. Drink very little with the meals so food will not float around and become sour. It may sound strange to some but after a tired person has eaten an energy building meal of this kind they can, in one or two hours, eat a muscle building meal composed of such foods as starches and cereals, a bowl of rice (brown), or bread pudding, or some of the lighter muscle foods such as bananas, squash, or a dish of oatmeal although oatmeal needs plenty of activity to take care of it properly.

As soon as you learn how to be your own food chemist you can tell when to use the stimulating foods

SAMMY JAY DOES SOME SHREWDS GUESSING

Sammy Jay is a queer fellow. Although he is a scamp himself, and dearly loves to make trouble for his neighbors, he is always ready to take their part when others make trouble for them. Many are the times he has given them warning of danger.

This is one reason they are willing to overlook his own shortcomings. So, though in many ways he is no better than Reddy Fox, he dearly loves to upset Reddy's plans and is very apt to rejoice when Reddy gets into trouble.

Of course being right there he saw all that happened when Reddy ran against the old barrel at the top of the hill and sent it rolling down with Jimmy Skunk inside. He had been quite as much surprised as Reddy to see who it was. So, of course, he had seen what happened to Reddy when Jimmy Skunk faced him.

Now, instead of being sorry for Reddy, he had openly rejoiced. It seems to be just that way with a great many people. They like to see others, who are considered very smart, get into trouble. So Sammy had laughed and made fun of poor Reddy.

In the first place it was very exciting, and Sammy dearly loved excitement. And then, it seemed to be just that way with a great many people. They like to see others, who are considered very smart, get into trouble.

People's Pulpit

Editor's Note: Mr. Baker is still on the air. Your paper merely printed another lie. You are a trifle vindictive, but have a right to be. Some of them may die of cancer. They hang themselves.

People's Pulpit:— Sorry to hear the bad news about Baker's radio station. Believe he will come out O. K. at least I hope so. Do you believe in omens? I found a spider in my newspaper today—and I wonder if that is bad luck or an omen of some kind.

Keep up your fighting spirit, we like it. I'm with you for a year and if you keep on making good, I'm with you for ten more in case I live that long in this world of grind, grind, grind, and among the Docs who commercialize upon human souls, as Mr. Baker puts it.

R. F. Editor's Note: As old Mark Twain said—Finding the spider in your paper is not good luck or bad luck. The spider was merely looking over your paper to see which merchant is not advertising, so that he can go to that store, spin his web across the door, and lead a life of undisturbed peace ever afterwards.

People's Pulpit:— I just read in today's (June 5) Ottumwa Courier that Mr. Baker must get off the air by midnight tonight, but, as the dailies print so many lies, I don't know whether to believe it or not. If so, I'll see it in the Free Press.

Well, Mr. Baker is not whipped yet. I think I know him well enough to know that he is no quitter. And anyway, he intends to fight for your rights and ours!

We sure wish him all possible success and a grand victory in the finish.

Daisy, Ruth and Harry W. Burgess.

Editor's Note: You are right. Your Ottumwa Courier has printed so many lies that maybe they get so they tell the truth and then believe it themselves. Mr. Baker is still on the air, and your local paper lied. Tell your friends to read a truthful paper, like you do—the Free Press.

Manhattan Days and Nights

By Walter Trumbull

An important employee of big business made a mistake. It did not wish to be discursive, so he said nothing. But the thing happened the next day, and the day after. The old lady made no advances, but finally she got on the nerves of Mr. Straus. He said to the manager, "You promised me I should have a table to myself, but every day that old woman comes to eat at my table. Who is she?"

"Oh, I see. That's Lon Chaney, made up for his part in 'The Unholy Three'."

There is a certain producer in New York on whom many stories are told. One day he entered the theatre as a new orchestra was being rehearsed in the music of a coming production. At one end of the orchestra a man was playing one of those big French horns, which gives the performer the appearance of being in the coils of an inflated brass boa constrictor, with a megaphone in its mouth.

"What is that?" demanded the producer.

"That is a tuba," explained an assistant.

"I like its looks. Put one at the other end, too."

This producer has a foreign car, a Hispano-Suiza, of which he is very proud. It always waits for him wherever he may be. He was having a dispute with a certain actress concerning salary. He maintained that he had made her a fair offer.

"Yes," said one of his employees. "Besides, she must have money. She drives up here every day in a Hispano-Suiza."

"Such a ham drives up in a car like that?" said the producer, filled with indignation. "It must be second-hand."

More Truth Than Poetry

By James J. Montague

WELLS OF INSPIRATION "Dante and other geniuses of the time used to forage for the local drug stores."—The American DRUGGIST.

In the days when there wasn't an "anti" To awaken the national ire— In the time when the late Mr. Dante Plucked his lily and lyrical lyre, If of themes for an epic his bosom was bare, And he felt like a nip of good hock, To the old corner drug store he used to repair For a neighborly chat with the "doc." And when he returned to his quiet abode, He would pick up his stylus and turn out an ode.

John Keats, in his meek adolescence, "Ere he wrote about songbirds and elves— Knew the name of each extract and essence. That the drug store contained on its shelves. He was skilled and adept in the mixing of pills For the shoemaker, blacksmith or cop, And he first heard the nightingale's nocturnal trills Through the door of his little old shop. And there mandragora and poppy and thyme He mingled, while clothing his fancies in rhyme.

Today not a measure comes rippling From the depths of the pharmacist's store, For the habit of neighborly tipping

Is practiced within it no more. And perhaps that is why that so rarely one meets With the songs that so limpidly flow As they did in the eras when Dante Plied his pens, in the long long ago.

Times change with the ages, alas, and today No undying classics the drug stores purvey.

Happy Country Russia appear, merely to have exchanged a czar named Romanoff for one named Stalin.

There are over 63,000,000,000,000 possible shots in billiards. In order to execute every one of these plays, a player would have to make one of these shots every second for 2,000,000,000 years.

Hans Groenhoff, German pilot, created a world's record for glider flight when he glided from Munich, Bavaria, to Kaaden, Czechoslovakia, a distance of 165 miles. An airplane towed his glider into the air and released it over Munich, after which Groenhoff rode the air currents to Kaaden.

Learn to Know the Right Word

By W. C. Nicholson

A STIMULATION "One of the primary objects of 'The Right Word' is to stimulate interest in our language. Discussions and even controversy are healthy reactions."

P. A. Miller of Missoula, Mont., writes: "The Right Word" is educational in more ways than I am able to point out. Even the controversies have their values, inasmuch as they give a person something to look for in his reading."

Mr. Miller followed one controversy and then proceeded to look up the question at issue himself, and this is what he found: "One of the contributors took issue with you in regard to the use of the term 'us all' in preference to 'all of us.' You will find in 'The Scarlet Letter,' page 47, the following: "This woman has brought shame upon us all, and ought to die."

"Thackeray says: 'As for the charities of Mr. Dickens, multiplied kindnesses which he has conferred upon us all, etc.'"

Finally, Mr. Miller defends "I don't think," saying, "There are so many instances of this that I would hesitate to point them out. Mr. Brougham, the gentleman, in Webster's quotation as having said 'I differ with the honorable gentleman on this point,' began an oration as follows: 'I don't think, etc.'"

Mr. Miller closes his letter as follows: "The foregoing is only a sample of what 'The Right Word' is doing for me, and I wish to say that I am for this column first, last, and all the time."

Many thousands of others be similarly stimulated. (Copyright, 1931)

Trig and Trim Is Fashion Note For Traveltogs

By ALICE LANGELEIR

PARIS—(LINS)—Travel togs are terribly trig and trim these days when all indications point toward summer tripping. Today's travel ensemble is fitted and fitting, as smartly cut as anything one wears for tea or dinner.

Jane Regny is making a very chic travel coat of blue and white tweed in three-button redingote style. Beneath it are a suspender tweed skirt and white jersey blouse. A fur collar is detachable and may be snapped on at will.

Red, white and blue are popular for travel togs. In fact, all the brightest colors are worn. Paul Poiret uses green woolen for a pleated trouser skirt and sleeveless jacket. It is worn over a short-sleeved white crepe blouse to accompany a collarless travel coat of green and brown wool. It is especially smart for air travel.

Redfern's brown and white checked silk jacket ensemble is a very good short Sunday trip costume. The one-piece dress has short sleeves and a brown patent leather belt.

Another designer is making a black alpaca dust-coat that can be slipped on while traveling by motor. There is a little capelet of white pique that can be buttoned on the two buttons below the neck at the waist.

The redingote is still one of the smartest traveling coats in Paris today, usually of heavy diagonal woolen, spangly wool or closely-woven tweed.

Picnic Luncheon Held At Othmer Cottage

The CLUE of the SCARLET RIBBON

SYNOPSIS:—Because of her love for Harry Crox, a famous movie star, Gladys Linton is innocently ensnared in one of Hollywood's most thrilling unsolved murders. The death of one closely connected with the case has unseated her lip, and she tells the true version for the first time. Thornton Trainbridge, a young newspaper man, is trying to prove his innocence. Among the suspects are Jim Conklin, Harry's chauffeur; Florence Williams, movie star, who had an appointment with Harry on the night he was killed; Charles, her brother, a drug addict; Aunt Kate, who knows more than she will admit about the murder; Pierre Caston, head of the dope ring to which Harry belonged; Sam Helwig, one of Caston's henchmen, is found in a farmhouse—murdered. In the hope of clearing up this second mystery, Thornton Trainbridge stays in Helwig's room one night and never returns. The police cannot help him. Charles comes to see him and admits that he was in Helwig's room, but denies seeing Trainbridge. He gives him a letter to deliver to his sweetheart, Gladys.

By E. V. BURKHOLDER

I DELIVERED the envelope to Gladys the next morning. Whatever was in it must have caused her considerable pain. She cried and paced the floor like a crazy person.

"He's gone for good," she wailed pitifully. "He won't ever come back. No, he won't come back."

I couldn't get very excited over this news. I was perfectly willing that he would disappear forever, and I knew that it would be the best thing in the world for Gladys if he did. But I didn't say that much. I just kept still and let her rave.

"Why didn't he let me come and see him?" she wailed. "Why did he hide out? The police didn't want to arrest him. He's been over a week and I never saw him. He's hiding his reasons."

"I don't know," I replied. "I just said he likely had reasons for not wanting to see me. He's been over a week and I never saw him. He's hiding his reasons."

"How did he look?" she asked, her face suddenly lighting up. "Oh, he looked all right. About the same as usual. At that he broke down and cried again. 'He'll never get well. He'll never get well,' she wailed.

I CONFIDE IN POLICE

I left a few minutes after that. She was still crying when I walked out of the house. I didn't try to comfort her. I knew there was nothing I could do.

"I ain't hidin' the fact I'm a little skeered and nervous like"

ing I could do or say and I was trying to get out of my mind to commit a foolish act. I went down to the police station from my house and saw Detective Morton, but I got no information out of him about Thornton. I told him about Charles' visit. It didn't seem to interest him much. I knew I wouldn't get any information out of him. I was the only person who could confide in. I felt better after I had told him.

Charles' visit was on my mind. My mind worked better when I was moving. I felt depressed and afraid when I was alone in my room.

Charles told me all he knew about the murder of Sam Helwig and the visits to that room. I didn't know why Charles was so anxious to see me. It was a clue that would incriminate him. He would have acted differently. But was he responsible for his actions?

When I thought about his visit the night before, I realized how he and I were in a room with the strange forces that worked in the dark and were "conspiring."

Help the other readers of the Midwest Free Press to cook. Send in the recipes you like best, sign your name, and address, they will be gladly published.

MENU FOR THURSDAY

BREAKFAST: Cherries, oatmeal with cream, sausage cakes, popovers, coffee.

LUNCHEON: Chicken salad, crisp rolls, molded tapoca, popovers, fruit cookies, iced tea.

DINNER: Fruit cup, broiled steak, French fried potatoes, boiled spinach, asparagus salad, floating island, coffee.

Popovers

Beat 3 eggs in a deep bowl, add 3 cups of milk, 3 cups of flour and a pinch of salt. Beat all thoroughly, pour into greased pans and bake one-half hour. This quantity makes three dozen.

Chicken Salad

Boil a chicken until tender, remove the meat from the bones, throwing out all skin and gristle. Cut in dice, and add to it 1/2 as much chopped celery as you have chicken meat. Mix well and cover with a salad dressing. Put pieces of hard-boiled eggs on top. Garnish with celery leaves.

"No, it was a man about forty or forty-five."
"He was educated—or a thug?"
"He was a fairly well educated man. He dressed well and talked like a gentleman."
"What did he want up in that room?"
"How do I know? He pushed me aside and walked up the stairs."
"He seems to have known where the room was."
"Yes, he went right up there—when Helwig was there."
"Maybe he did, but I never saw him before."

THE HIDDEN PAPER

"I wonder who it was and what he wanted so badly."
"I don't know what he wanted, but whatever it was he must have gotten it."
"Why?"
"Because he took up a board in the floor. It's still up and there are some old papers there. Helwig must have hidden something there."

"Can I see it?"
"Sure, you can go up there."
"The room was pretty much as it had been when I saw it right after Thornton disappeared. Nothing had been changed since then."
"In one corner a board had been removed from the floor. This board was about six inches by one foot. It looked as if it had been taken out to make a hiding place."

There were several old papers in the hidden place, but they were of no importance. Whatever had been hidden had been removed.

"I guess there isn't much we can do," I said wearily. "There is no way to tell who this man was. Is Thornton's coat still out there?"

"I have been to see the police several times, but they think Thornton was killed by the dope gang. They won't do anything."

"That's the way with the police," Mrs. Collins replied with scorn. "They don't do anything when something happens. But they're always sticking their noses around here, and they're always making people live peacefully like."

I wondered what her experiences with the police had been. They had asked me questions. I walked out of the room and downstairs. She followed me. "This man—can't you describe him?" I asked when we were back in that ratty sitting room.

"What was he like?" she asked. "Well, dressed, and talked a little stiff like."

"Did he act as he might have been a butler somewhere?"
"You're right! Miss Linton, he did. I never thought of that. Sure he acted like a butler."
"That's interesting. I think I know who it was."

"You know who it was? Then maybe we can find out what happened. I looked at her sadly. "No, it's the man I think it is. The mystery will just be a little deeper."

"But you can tell the police who it is. They will find out something." "I told them this morning. We'll likely never see him again."

But I was mistaken about that. I was to see that man very soon, but under circumstances that served to make his actions and his part in the case more puzzling.

Mrs. Collins wanted me to stay and talk with her. The poor woman was so lonely. She said she was alone in the house and the events of the past few days had made it a house of terror. She wanted me to stay and talk with her. The poor woman was so lonely. She said she was alone in the house and the events of the past few days had made it a house of terror.

MYSTERY VISIT

I putted her hand and walked away. I felt sorry for her and sensed that she had a companion in misery. A strange companion—in the dark, but when she was alone and afraid you welcome any kindly soul that suffers with you.

She didn't say a word. I knew that she had something important to say. She was nervous and she looked nervously around before she spoke.

MRS. COLLINS SPEAKS

"A man came today and insisted on entering that room," she said. "He wasn't from the police. I never saw him before. When I wouldn't let him in, he pushed me aside and went upstairs. He was there for about an hour. I heard him come downstairs and go out of the house."

"He spoke in a low whisper. I could see that she was still frightened."

"Was he a young man?" I asked, having Charles in mind.
"No, he was a man about forty. Tall and rather stiff in his actions and talk."
"You are sure that it was not the young man who visited Helwig?"

All Workers Share In Midwest Free Press Circulation Contest

The Midwest Free Press circulation campaign, which is just starting, will be very profitable to those who participate. It is something different than any drive of this nature ever conducted in this section of Iowa.

Your choice of four 1931 models of the finest motors cars built in America today, an airplane with a course of flying instructions on hundreds of good old American dollars, plus ten per cent of every dollar's worth of business you write. These are followed by smaller cash awards of three $150 awards and three $75 awards. One glance at the list of gifts we have assembled for distribution indicates the caliber of the entire proposition.

It is expected that this coming week will see more interest displayed in all sections of the community and more active energetic folks enrolling as candidates. The proposition is big enough and worthy enough to interest the most capable people in this community.

Candidates cannot possibly lose in the "Everybody Wins Something" campaign. It does not cost one cent to enter and pull down the very biggest of the awards. All candidates will be paid ten per cent of all business written as they turn their subscriptions in at campaign headquarters.

Never before has such a liberal opportunity been presented to the people of this vicinity. Never before has such an alluring and generous proposition been launched. It is plainly evident, by the increasing interest shown, that the ambitious folk of the trade area are going to take advantage of this unusual opportunity.

This proposition is BIG enough to demand the attention of the BIGGEST MAN OR WOMAN IN this section of Iowa. If someone came to you today and put up a proposition in which you stand to make $900 a month on the side for the next two months, you would give it serious consideration, wouldn't you? There are some candidates who will be making more in the next few weeks than most people probably do in a year and more than most people actually save in years and years.

Cash Has Appeal to All. If you have a car, if one of the big motor cars or the airplane does not appeal to you, the cash which they represent ought to appeal. With $1800.00 you can do much. You have a start on that home you have wanted for so long. You have a start in business. You have funds to carry on in your present undertaking.

If you have been considering entering this campaign you owe it to yourself to know all there is about it. You owe it to yourself to investigate.

Come Talk It Over. Come on down to The Free Press office and have this generous offer explained to you. If you prefer, just telephone 2900, say you are interested in the campaign, and would like to have a representative call at your home or office to give you the full details or any information you may desire relative to the campaign.

There is a NOMINATION COUPON which appears in the display advertisement in this issue, fill in your name and address and mail or bring it to the campaign manager of The Midwest Free Press office. This is the first step in becoming a candidate. Don't delay—ACT TODAY.

The campaign office will be open evenings until 8 o'clock to answer inquiries, receive nominations and issue supplies. All are invited to call or telephone for information.

FICKLE MAIDEN MUST ARRIVE AT DECISION—UNHAPPY WIVES HAVE RIGHT TO ASK FOR HAPPINESS.
By Virginia Vane

Dear Miss Vane: I have been engaged to a girl for about three years and I am very much in love with her. It has often seemed to me that she doesn't really care, and once she broke our engagement, but fixed it up again later on. We were going to be married this spring and now she writes to tell me that she is not sure whether she wants to be married or not. She says she loves me, but isn't able to decide about marriage. This thing is breaking my heart, and I want to know what to do about it. We are five hundred miles away from each other and write to each other constantly. I have seen her three times in the last six months. Shall I stop the engagement, or what? I can't go on like this.

GORMAN. These long engagements are bad enough, my boy, but engagements which do not lead to marriage are even worse. When they stretch over a period of years, when everything started you might have married the lady and lived happily ever after, if the final conditions had been O. K. But you see, the girl has had too much time to fuss and think and wonder. Also she has had plenty of time to get bored with you.

There are few young girls who can remain happy day in and day out, thinking of someone far away and dreaming of the time when he will come back to them. They'd like to be as faithful as all that, but they see their friends stepping out, and they want to do likewise. And then they meet attractive boys who are near at hand, and who would make nice steady beaux, and the first thing you know, they're signing divorce warrants. They haven't made a mistake in tying themselves up to a man who is so far away.

That's the sort of thing that has happened to your lady love. And it may be that she's wondered so long, she's talked herself out of being really in love. She's talked herself out of the idea of marriage. Your constant letters, and your obvious devotion may fill her with enough contrition to make her feel that she must keep on loving you. So she hesitates to give you up and keeps you suffering with her indecision and doubts.

Tell her that you must know the truth, and that you can't go on any longer waiting and hoping. Either she is to marry you in the spring, or she is not. She must make up her mind. You should not be kept in suspense any longer. And if she refuses to be definite, then stop writing. It may give her something new to worry about. I can't hurt you, cause any more, than it is already hurt,—and it will give you a chance to end this suspense which is the worst part of all suffering. Good luck to you.

NIGHT KITTENBALL GAMES DRAW CROWD OF 1,200

JUNCTION TEAM BEATS NICHOLS IN 2-1 BATTLE

Roach and Musser in 5-3 Victory Over Iowa Pearls

BY SPIKE LEBBE
Before a crowd of approximately 1,200 enthusiastic kittenball fans, the Columbus Junction team won an exciting contest from the Nichols outfit, 2 to 1, and the Roach and Musser team defeated the Iowa Pearls, 5 to 3, in games played Tuesday night under the floodlights at the Jefferson field.

In other league games played Tuesday the Orange Squeeze team beat the Freight house players at Heinz diamond in a National league game, 4 to 1, while the Elks team defeated the Heinz aggregation in an American league contest at Weed park, 6 to 2.

Many Thrills Furnished
The Nichols-Columbus Junction game furnished many thrills for the crowd. Three sensational catches were made, two of them by Marshall, the Junction leftfielder, and the other by Green, the Nichols leftfielder.

The losers pushed across a run in the first half of the second inning on a hit and an error but the Junctioners tied the score in their half of the fourth on a triple by Rod Manley and a fielders choice. Neither team scored in the fifth inning but in the last half of the sixth Rod Manley laid a double into the bleachers and scored on a single by Hull. The losers could do nothing but pop up in the seventh and consequently were beaten.

Errors Mar Game
The second game didn't prove as interesting as the first as it was marred by errors. The winners pushed across two runs in the first of the third but in the last half of the fourth the Iowa Pearl boys tied the score.

In the first of the fifth the Roach and Musser team took advantage of two errors two balls and a hit to score three more runs. The Pearl outfit could count but one more run in the last of the fifth.

A collection was taken up by Ben Gallaher, secretary of the "Y," who is sponsoring the night games, and he reported this morning that a total of $24.98 was taken up, enough to cover all lighting and upkeep expenses. Mr. Gallaher announced that the teams were well pleased with the playing conditions and are willing to play here again. Box scores of night games:

GEAUGA LAKE, O.—(INS)—W. L. "Young" Stribling, Georgian heavyweight contender who meets Max Schmeling for the world's crown in Cleveland July 3, was to stage his last ring workout in broad daylight here this afternoon.

The next scheduled ring drill for the challenger, carded for Friday, will be staged under the arc—one of Stribling's ideas with getting "My Boy" accustomed to fighting night under artificial light.

SENATORS AND MACKS WIN TO KEEP IN STEP

Senators Keep Pace With Champs But Unable to Gain

By COPELAND C. BURG
INS Sports Writer
NEW YORK—The Washington Senators are in the clubhouse role. They are just good enough to be runnersup to the champion Athletics and the world of baseball won't fully appreciate them unless they pass the A's and lead the American league.

Day after day the Senators keep pace with the champions but all the floral horsehoes are trotted out for the Philadelphiaans.

Washington continued today to show its class with a record of a clean sweep of the series with the Chicago White Sox. They drove back the Alabasters for the fourth time in a row and won their ninth straight contest to the melody of 9 to 3. Crowder gave the Sox 14 hits against ten permitted by Pat Caraway but loose fielding by the Chicagoans and tightness of Crowder with men on base told the story.

New York moved back into undisputed possession of second place in the national circuit by blowing up the Chicago Cubs, 10-2. Willard Morrell, a somewhat obscure right-hander hurler yielded only eight safeties, while three Chicago pitchers handed out 18. Ott got a homer and three other blasts and Terry socked two triples and two less important blows.

Even Manager Bucky Harris playing second could not save the sliding Detroit Bengals and they were tripped again, 12 to 3, by the A's. George Earnshaw was good for only six hits and knocked a homer in his own behalf.

Eighteen hits off almost as many Brooklyn pitchers enabled St. Louis to lower away the Robins again, 8 to 5. Fritch led the club swingers with four blasts the Robins could not touch. Luque, Brooklyn pitcher, was chased out of the game in the third inning for teasing the umpire, a Mr. Donnelly.

The Cincy Reds, so good that they are staying in the cellar, surprised by beating Boston, 7 to 2, thanks to Benny Frey's five-hit pitching. The win was three in four for the Reds over the Braves.

Two good men from Philadelphia were out, two men were on base and the Phils trailed Pittsburgh one run when Chuck Klein stroled to bat in the fifth inning. He poked his fourteenth four-baser of the season and eventually the Phils wrapped it up, 7 to 3. Scores by:

Falls On Feet

—By PHIL NOWLAN And DICK CALKINS

I'LL LAND ON MY FEET, BUT I CAN'T BEND MY KNEES TO TAKE UP THE SHOCK!

IT'S THE AMERICAN!

HE'LL HIT US!

GIVE HIM ROOM!

THIS WOULD BE EASY IF I WASN'T PARALYZED FROM THE KNEES UP

I'M DIVING AT WILMA! WHO HAD KIDNAPPED WILMA OUT OF JEALOUSY, I SHOT OUT THE WINDOW

THE MIDWEST FREE PRESS WANTS ENTRIES FOR IT'S $10,000 PAYROLL CAMPAIGN

TEN THOUSAND DOLLARS in Cash or Grand Prizes is the reward for those men and women in Muscatine and trade territory, who have the determination and the ambition to earn more money . . . to earn big money, paid as you turn your subscriptions in . . . and to win a fine new car or a big cash prize at the same time.

This sensational campaign is just getting started and there IS an advantage in getting an immediate start. You do not invest one red cent . . . you need no experience whatever . . . the work takes only a few minutes a day . . . and you have no handicaps. Every one works on the same basis, an absolutely impartial basis.

Never before have the people of this vicinity been offered an opportunity so brilliant . . . so lucrative . . . so easy to make money. All you need to do is to say "I WILL" and the battle is more than half over. Procrastination is the only thing that can keep you from more than doubling your income. You can make more money for the time required than you ever dreamed possible. Here is something new . . . different . . . This paper is rolling $10,000.00 back into circulation. If you let anything stand between you and prosperity you can blame yourself only. And remember that you get a big pay check every day as you turn your subscriptions in plus the opportunity to earn one of the fine prizes or accumulated earnings.

You CANNOT Lose Because Everybody Will Win Something

If you say "NO" you are slamming the door on a golden opportunity of your lifetime. You can offer no excuses because there is no excuse why you cannot enter this campaign . . . unless it's just a lack of initiative pure and simple. Regardless of our position in life we all have some unfilled desires . . . many things we would like to do if we had the money to do with. Those dreams can come true . . . they will come true . . . but it all depends on your ability to make a decision and to work not hard but intelligently. Do yourself a real favor . . . act now . . . because an early start means a happy finish. The Campaign Is Just Starting.
